

CCRI Review

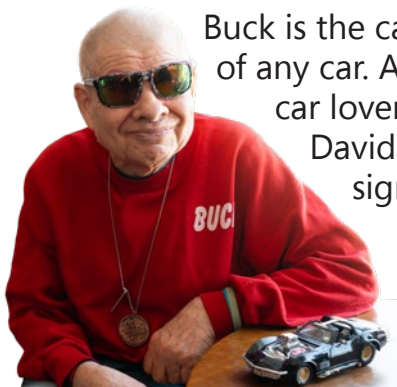

The CCRI Review is published for families, friends, donors, volunteers, employees and those we serve.

David loves to play tricks. Your keys are missing? David's smirk will be what gives him away!

David

Buck is the car guy. He can tell you any make or model of any car. And his toy car collection would make any car lover jealous! Buck also is a jokester, so while David's smirk may be a clue, it isn't a telltale sign of who may have hid the keys!

Buck

Joel is the handyman. He loves to mow the lawn, shovel the walk, and is the first person to point out when things like lightbulbs need to be changed.

Joel

Gary is an observer. He takes in the hustle and bustle of his roommates and while he communicates differently than the other three, they are always quick to ensure staff know what Gary wants and needs.

Gary

These four are more than roommates, they are a family! As they age and their physical needs are changing, their home is no longer the ideal place for them to live. It has a basement, steps to get into the house, and a layout not conducive to medical and accessibility equipment.

Fixing this problem would be easy, if fully accessible homes were available in our community. Homes on the market are two story, bi-level, have stairs to enter, and have bedrooms and bathrooms too small for equipment.

With the help of our incredible supporters, we are building our fifth accessible home in as many years. Not because we are in the business of building homes. But because it is an unmet need in our community. Joel, David, Buck, and Gary deserve to stay together as a family. They deserve a home that meets their needs and allows them as much independence as possible.

Your support means the "Fab Four" will be able to age gracefully surrounded by their family and community. It will mean they won't need an assisted living type environment and can have a safe home for the rest of their lives. And that is priceless.
